"I love the GroceryAid London to Paris cycle. The sense of accomplishment is awesome, and it is achievable for most people with just a little bit of training... regardless of how much or little cycling you have done in the past. The grocery aid team do a great job organising the event, so you can focus on raising money for such a fantastic cause and connecting with colleagues across the industry in a really informal way."

"I have been on four GroceryAid cycles now and all have been immaculately organised from registration, to transfer of bikes and luggage, stops, routes and hotels. I really like how everyone comes together on the ride, from different companies but also with different cycling abilities, from experienced cyclists to people who have just started cycling."
